Who doesn't love a good logo parody? These clever graphic designers recreated logos belonging to some of the most famous brands, all for the sake of a good laugh. Whether you're looking for some design inspiration or a little something to lift your mood, these logo parodies will surely do the trick. Fair warning, some of these will be hard to unsee!

1. Post-it

How many times have you lost or misplaced your sticky notes? If only we could keep better track of them...This hilariously relatable spoof on the Post-it notes brand logo is spot on.

3. Slack

When Slack released their new logo this year, designers had a lot of opinions to share. One in particular, was that the shapes making up the new logo resembled four ducks in a circle. This clever designer played into this even further.

I saw someone resemble the colored parts of the new slack logo to ducks, and I couldn't resist :)
Made this for fun!

4. Toyota

With the arrival of Disney Plus, Yoda has made quite the comeback—including in this parody logo! This spoof of Toyota's branding poses the question, "What did Yoda say when I asked if we were lost?" The response is pure genius, "Off course, we are."

5. Coca Cola

This hilarious parody of entrepreneur Johnny Cupcakes brand plays on the classic Coca Cola wordmark logo. Designer Corey Reifinger did an incredible job of replicating the iconic typography and incorporating it into an equally tasty word. Watch out Pepsi!

7. McDonald's

Move over Burger King, there's a new fast-food king in town. McDonald's just became a double threat with this logo design that brings Wendy's into the picture. Because two fast-food chains are better than one!
