Thank you, great tutorial! I have watched many tutorials, but have not had the Eureka lightbulb come on yet. Could you please prepare a tutorial where I can place products ie: my client's kitchen faucets and sinks onto realistic kitchens, where I take a stock photo or my photos as examples for the AI to work with but I have to play with the perspectives to match the products' angles? It could also include bathroom faucets and shower fixtures... these tools are great for photo composites and you're a great teacher! I need to keep the original product, but the rest has to provide a great ambiance photo for a catalog or webpage. (This is for a school project an...

Well, this is fantastic stuff. I have tried to follow the key part of your excellent results by using Quick Mask followed by Fade, but sadly my Photoshop on the Mac does not allow Fade to work. I have tried resetting preferences, but still no Fade. Any suggestions or other ways to create your results (particularly fish blending into the water and suchlike).

Omg, you've blown my mind again Jesús. I've been following along for about 90 mins and am only half way through. I now need to rest for a while before continuing. I have struggled because I'm not so fast on PS as you, and my brain aches, but thank you for this tutorial. You defo are the dog's doodahs, as we might say here in the UK.
"Dog's doodahs" is a clean version, but it's a way of saying you're the best 🐶
